Introductory remarks:

The largest collection of drawings by Jean-François Millet (nearly six hundred works) is to be found in the Musée du Louvre Département des Arts Graphiques, part of the Musée d'Orsay permanent collection. Whereas many other notable collections of his graphic works, American in particular, consist largely of well-executed drawings intended for collectors, the Louvre collection consists of a large number of sketches, studies of nature, quickly jotted down images in a notebook.<sup>6</sup>

It bears great similarity to the 8 drawings which were found in C. Gurlitt cache. Like the Louvre collection, they portray family themes, images of the humility, hard work, and peace of rural life that reflected the artist's nostalgia for a pre-industrial society living in harmony with nature. The drawings by Millet found in the art trove are typical of his oeuvre during his residence near Fontainebleau, where he arrived in 1871. He concentrated in capturing the landscape and the humble inhabitants of this region. The drawings in the C. Gurlitt cache were part of the estate found in Millet's studio and sold at Hotel Drouot auction after Millet's death in 1875, identified by the estate's stamp.

The challenge facing the team was the attempt to identify the subject matter, which constitutes the necessary foundation for the search in various sources. Lostart ID # 478205 was in all probability a study for Millet's major painting "Women Sewing by Lamplight (La Vieille)", 1853-54, currently in the collection of the Museum of Fine Arts Boston.<sup>7</sup> A similar rendering: "La Veille auprès du berceau", 1861<sup>8</sup> (The vigil at the cradle) of a later date depicts a similar subject, however, the composition varies dramatically from the study. The paintings reflects once more Millet's focus on the life of the peasants and the special role of female duties in the realm of peasant's life cycle. The woman sits close by her baby's bedside engaged in sewing, the proximity allowing her to listen to its gentle breathing as it sleeps. The dramatic use of the lamp as the source of light utilized in both paintings has not yet been developed in the initial quick study of this theme, as is also apparent in a more developed drawing depicting two women sewing.<sup>9</sup> As the descriptions are vague and without measurements, it can only be proposed that this drawing might be identical with lot 169 "L'enfant malade", dated 1858, in the 1875 estate sale of the artist.<sup>10</sup>

Lines 825-827 refer to eight ink drawings bought presumably as one lot, as the price appears as a consolidated purchase. No details are provided beyond the medium. The team believes that the listings refer to the 8 works on paper with a variety of media found in the C. Gurlitt cache and listed hastily by H. Gurlitt in the ledger.

Line 1032 registers the sale of 8 drawings by Millet for 1500 RM to Paul Roemer. The fact that H. Gurlitt registered Roemer as the buyer does not contradict the fact that the drawings were found in C. Gurlitt's cache. H. Gurlitt served as Roemer's main buyer in Paris for his Berlin gallery<sup>12</sup> and Gurlitt may have assumed the future acquisition, which did not materialize, consequently the works remained in H. Gurlitt's possession.

Book 3: Acquisitions and sales 1943

<sup>13</sup> According to the extant sale ledgers, this was one of about forty works that Gurlitt claimed to have acquired from the art dealer Jean Lenthal in Paris on 20 June 1942. Research by the Taskforce revealed these entries false. Post-war correspondence between Gurlitt and Lenthal, which was found in Cornelius Gurlitt's Salzburg residence, proved that Gurlitt coerced Lenthal into issuing fake receipts for works that Lenthal never owned or sold. Gurlitt provided Lenthal with a statement to this effect in 1947.

Jean Lenthal (recte Hans Loewenthal, 1914 Vienna–1983 Paris) was an art dealer in Paris. On account of his Jewish descent, Lenthal was deported in 1943, first to Drancy and thereafter to Auschwitz, Sachsenhausen and Mauthausen concentration camps. After the liberation in 1945, Lenthal returned to live in Paris where he resumed his art dealership. Anlage 3.

<sup>14</sup> An etching of this work was created by J. Millet in 1863, a fact known to H. Gurlitt, allowing him to fabricate a sale of lesser value (NGA Washington 1943.3.6262, "The departure for work")

Book 4: 1943

Line 3214 registers a March 1943 sale of Millet to Herman Reemtsma from Hamburg for 600 RM as per payments by the buyer.

Conclusion:

- The above outline reiterates the challenge of accepting the ledger as reliable, although it reaffirms that the listings do contain partially important facts and dates.
- The 8 Millet drawings in various media found in the C. Gurlitt cache, might be identical with the 8 Millet drawings registered in the ledger as being bought from J. Lenthal (falsification) and sold to Paul Roemer (unmaterialized sale?), however since the medium differs doubts still remain.

Photograph:<sup>15</sup>

The six drawings found in the C. Gurlitt cache apparently were framed together, and probably sold as such. Two additional works by Millet found in the C. Gurlitt cache, both landscapes rendering, were found framed. The frame of Lostart # 478205 was not identified in the C. Gurlitt cache and no further evidence was found as to the identity for whom Schoeller has written the expertise. The personal connections between H. Gurlitt and A. Schoeller surface in the many authenticity certificates by this expert for a large number of the works found in C. Gurlitt cache.

Archival sources:

The auction protocol to the 1975 Vente Millet lists “Dewelee” (?) as the buyer to this lot. It has not been possible to identify this person yet.<sup>16</sup> Since so far no annotated auction catalogue for Millet’s estate sale 1875 was found and the description of the lots is very vague, thus hardly identifiable, it has not proven possible to ascertain the buyer to this lot.

MNR Site Rose-Valland - Musée Nationaux Récupération

Five entries record works of art by J.-F. Millet as restituted to France from Germany. Most of these restitutions were handled at the Central Collecting Point Wiesbaden. It is important to point to the fact that two of these entries mention in the provenance the fact that André Schoeller bought the items at the Viau auction on December 11, 1942 for Hildebrandt Gurlitt.<sup>19</sup> An added verification of the business connection between the art expert A. Schoeller and H. Gurlitt, as attested to also in Lostart 532993, are authenticity certificates issued by Schoeller for Gérard or for Gurlitt.<sup>20</sup>

As this particular drawing appears on a photograph, with an authenticity expertise by Schoeller on recto,<sup>21</sup> the hypothesis that it has been issued for H. Gurlitt is reaffirmed by this evidence.

National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) / Fold3

The large collection of documents relating to the confiscation of Jewish collections in Paris supports the assumption that the Millet art represented in the C. Gurlitt cache originated with one of these looted collections. The fact is that the 79 collections were seized by the ERR,<sup>22</sup> but none of them with reports on Lostart 478205.

One needs to bear in mind the Moebel Aktion– Bilder, which do list Millet art confiscations.<sup>23</sup> Beginning in the spring of 1942, art objects were brought to the Jeu de Paume as part of the loot collected by the ERR offshoot, the “Moebel-Aktion” (furniture operation), stripping furnishings from the homes of Jews who had fled or had been deported. The M-Aktion art loot was separated into a number of special type-specific “M-A” collections, and were inventoried without revealing the name and address of the home from which they were seized. The Millet items in C. Gurlitt’s cache may have originated with such an operation and ended up in the hands of intermediaries like Wuester who dealt clandestinely with the looted items, selling to Parisian art dealers.

The Getty Provenance Index Database (Sales catalogue)

Forty-seven records of J.F. Millet are recorded in the database. All were checked and none corresponds directly with Lostart 478205.<sup>24</sup> Where subject matter and medium did bear similarities, the measurements did not.

It should be noted that the Theodore Fischer sale of 13-16 May 1936,<sup>25</sup> lot 1945, lists three small figure studies in ink with monogram. Two provide measurements, but they do not correspond to Lostart 478205, and neither does the medium. In addition, the Schoeller photograph with expertise attests to the Paris provenance.

- Auction and Exhibition Catalogues with reference to Lostart #478205:

Concurring with the identification of the specific authenticity stamp for the Millet sale of 1875,<sup>26</sup> the extensive collection of drawings in various media offered in Millet’s estate sale poses a challenge, especially due to the fact that the original title of the drawing was unknown to the team. The research conducted identified the drawing to be Étude pour la Veillée (femme couture à la lumière de la lampe). The drawing in lot #169 lists “L’enfant malade”, a general description of the subject matter, medium Dessin au crayon noir sur velin, referring to Conté Crayon. Nicolas-Jacques Conté invented the Conté Crayon in France in 1795, especially for drawing and sketching. Conté Crayons are made of compressed charcoal or graphite with the addition of wax, or clay mixed in for the base as well as natural pigments

Conclusions:

The extensive number of drawings produced by Millet offer a challenge to provenance research, especially in relationship to the small-scale drawings, not intended for sale by Millet during his lifetime, rather serving as preparatory sketches for his larger monumental paintings and pastels. The most extensive source, although lacking in visuals, are the two large Millet estate sales of 1875 and 1894.

The team believes that the drawing titled “L’enfant malade”, lot 169, in the 1875 Hotel Drouot estate sale, to correlate with Lostart #478205, in spite of some uncertainties discussed above. A buyer to this lot could not be established.

The photograph with expertise by Schoeller verifies the consolidated framing of the six drawings found in the C. Gurlitt cache, and attests to the fact that it was in Paris in 1943. The lack of further information does not allow any conclusions pertaining to the owner at the time, however, it seems highly likely that Gurlitt acquired the work in France in the 1940s.

The H. Gurlitt ledger has a listing of eight drawings, which the team believes might correlate to the eight drawings found in the C. Gurlitt cache, and could also refer to Lostart 478205. No further information could be drawn from the falsified acquisition through Jean Lenthal.

In light of the above, the team believes Lostart 478205 to have been acquired by Hildebrand Gurlitt in Paris in the 1940s.

Die Provenienz des Werkes konnte trotz intensiver Forschung nicht lückenlos aufgeklärt werden, d.h. das Kunstwerk ist weder erwiesenermaßen noch mit hoher Wahrscheinlichkeit NS-Raubkunst noch frei von NS-Raubkunstverdacht. Es wurde nach aktueller Einschätzung allen prioritären Rechercheansätzen nachgegangen. Das Werk muss demnach in die Kategorie „ungeklärt“ [=nach Ampelsystem: gelb] eingestuft werden.<sup>29</sup>

Disclaimer

The research that goes into establishing the provenance of a work of art usually requires complex work that often lasts many years. Researchers have to reconstruct events that took place many decades ago. Often, the only sources of vital clues stem from third parties who do not always represent and assess the facts in a manner that is beyond all doubt. The above object record is just an interim report that was designed as a basis to facilitate possible further in-depth research. Despite the short period of time in which it was compiled, this interim report is nevertheless the result of utmost care in research, combined with great professional expertise. The following provisions therefore apply:

- a) The investigation revolved exclusively around the question of the origin and chronology of ownership of the artwork described in the report. No liability will be accepted for:
  - the accuracy of the used sources’ presentation of the facts and any analyses, conclusions, and assessments they may contain,
  - the exhaustiveness of our probing into and evaluation of the available source material,
  - the analysis and conclusions drawn from the sources in the course of our research,
  - the findings on the subject of the report and how they were derived,
  - the authenticity of the artwork, as well as the accuracy of its attribution to a particular artist.
- b) The report is based on the sources available at the time it was written. It is an interim report. Further research might be required. It is important to note the possibility that new source material may be found, which may lead to a re-evaluation of the interim findings presented here.
- c) The present report does not purport to make pronouncements on any legal claims and legal positions. No liability will be accepted for any conclusions drawn by the addressee(s) or by third parties based on this report.
